Cold Weather Alone Kept Crowd from the Columbia Club.

The Columbia Club roof garden was brilliantly lighted last night, and had the weather been a little warmer the guests would have had an ideal evening. It was too cool on the roof for comfort, however, and the attendance was not as large as was expected. The music of the Klausmann orchestra was keenly enjoyed. There are seven pieces in the orchestra, and it will be heard Tuesday and Thursday evenings during July and August.

CITY NEWS NOTES.

Grace M. E. Church, corner East and Market streets, has changed the hour for its Sunday school from 2:15 p. m. to 9:30

Benjamin John, 3838 West Vermont street, shot a dog yesterday for chasing his Belgian hares, and was arrested for shooting in the city limits.

Rev. Moses Abramson, of New York, will lecture at Knesis Israel Synagogue, Eddy and Merrill streets, on Saturday at 4 p. m., and on Sunday at the same hour. Samuel T. Hague has raised $563, which he turned over to the storm relief committee of the Board of Trade yesterday, to be used for the relief of sufferers near Postmaster McGinnis has prepared a report showing that in the month of June of crawling over the dead bodies of their 5.244,280 pieces of first-class mail were handled at the Indianapolis office. Last June 4,245,960 pieces were handled. Charles G. Elliott, an Indianapolis civil engineer and expert on drainage and sewer-He will be stationed at Washington. Mr. Elliott is editor of the Drainage Journal. Mrs. Georgia Prickett is now chef at the Young Women's Christian Association building. She was born in Jacksonville, Ill., and for several years had charge of the lunch department in the Jacksonville (III.) High School. Three years ago she became stewardess at the Mrs. Clark Company lunch room in Chicago. John Ryan, employed by the street-car company, fell from the high platform of an emergency wagon while repairing a trolley wire on East Tenth street, yesterday, and was badly injured. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital in a street car. He seemed to be partially paralyzed, but it was thought his affliction was only temporary. Ryan lives at a boarding house near the Washington-street power house. Greenbury Walker, colored, 2516 Carolina street, who was arrested a few days ago for cruelty to animals, narrowly escaped nearceration again last night. Bicycle Policemen Morgan and Simon were sent to North street and Massachusetts avenue to investigate a report that a man was feeding his horse in the street. They found that Walker's horse could not pull its load and that he had unhitched it and started home, leaving a garbage awgon in the street. The officers could not find Walker, Miss Lucia Ray is spending the week but heard thuds on the paved street. They followed the sound and came upon Walker leading his horse. The horse was so crippled that one foot came down with such force as to make a sound which could be heard a square away. Walker promised to return with another horse and remove the wagon and he was not arrested, but the case will be reported to Humane Officer

WHOLESALE AND MANUFACTURING DISTRICT IS FLOODED.

Rivers at Concordia and Topeka, Kan., Still Rising and Driving People Out of Their Houses.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 10 .- The Ninth street Raccoon river levee gave way to night, inundating a large wholesale and manufacturing district, washing switches and doing damage aggregating $70,000. The total damage in this city from to-day's floods is estimated at $225,000, with many valuable properties in the flooded district in danger of loss.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 10 .- The waters have begun to recede on the lowlands near here, and, as no rain fell to-day, it is believed the worst is over. The damage done in Woodbury county alone is estimated by conservative men at over a million dollars and the total loss may reach twice that CONCORDIA, Kan., July 10 .- The Repubican river is still rising and hundreds of acres west and north of the city are under ously, at the Homestead steel works shortwater. Several hundred head of live stock | ly after noon to-day. Those seriously inhave been drowned and much stacked wheat has been washed away. The strong current has left its present channel and it is feared that the dam and mills will be left on dry land when the water subsides. August Johnson and family were rescued from their home in a boat. A house went down the river to-day.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 10 .- The flood situation in Topeka is more serious than at any time since 1892, the Kansas river to-day being fourteen feet six inches above the lowwater mark and still rising. Inhabitants of 'Little Russia," in the northeastern part of the city, have abandoned their homes or of the city park is under water.

Miners who left the mine by way of the Mill creek entrance brought horrible stories | the cause of the break is not known.

Two young men who were in the Klondike when the explosion occurred escaped by way of the air shaft heading up through age, has been appointed to a position in the Kernville hill from the mine. A fanhouse, now out of use, stands at the top afternoon. The mill was demolished. of this air shaft. This way the young men, sick and dizzy from the nauseous after damp, or black damp, reached safety. They told how they had walked across dead bodies to pure air and light. How many they did not know.

The Cambria steel officials were notified at once of the explosion. It caused consternation in the offices among those who heard the awful news. Chief Mining Engineer Moore and Assistant Prosser were the first to enter the mine after the explosion. They went in at the main entrance and began to work their way to the other end. Both were supplied with safety lamps. The progress was slow and tedious because of the poisonous gases.

The stories of the men who escaped are miraculous. Tom Foster, an assistant foreman in the Klondike mine, was among the first to emerge from the Mill Creek shaft. Soon after, Powell Griffith, a fire boss, came up. Foster was in his office when the explosion occurred. His first thought was for the safety of the men under his charge. With the help of Foreman Roberts, an effort was made to replace a few of the shattered doors. All the while the fire damp was closing around them. They did not falter for an instant, but straight into the midst of danger they went. The thought "save the men" was paramount. Through galleries into headings, warning and helping, the two men went. Roberts fell, but Foster staggered on, whither he hardly knew. In the midst of the danger he met Powell Griffiths, a fire boss. He had faced what seemed certain death in an effort to save his men.

SOME EXPERIENCES. Forward they went, dragging a comrade well adapted to evening dress as there are into a possible place of safety here, giva word of warning there until human endurance could stand the strain no longer. Exhausted they staggered into a heading where the fredamp had not entered. There they rested for a moment and then plunged forward-where, they did not know-until finally they wandered into a water level and through it reacned a place of safety.

Said Tom Foster: "How I escaped I don't know. It seems like a terrible nightmare. Hundreds of times I gave up hope, but from sheer instinct I stumbled forward until hnally I reached a place of safety. John whitney, who was beyond the uip where the explosion took place, said: '1 explosion. After the explosion we went back to rescue the less fortunate and nearly lost our own lives. We got one man and saved his life. I did not see my father who many outside of the drivers escaped." william Malcoim was in the upper part of the mine when the explosion came, ming without hats, coats, and some without clothes, and in a terrible state of excitement. As near as a can remember, not more that ten came that way and they escaped, maving at least 200 in the dip. michard and John Meyers were in the mine where the explosion took place, but managed to escape. About a o clock they concluded to go back into the mine and prought back a report as to the situation. they went two haires miside, and on the way saw the dead body of Eddle Tamanski at the first side-track, about a fine from the explosion point. 'The damp was learith, said Mr. bennett. "We had to turn back. We could go no further. John frewiett, at the time of the accident. Was two lines back in the inines. The exprosion, he said, was about no yards from the explosion we could not see our hands perore us until we reached the main heading. It appeared to be a smoky, badsmelling substance, whether gas or damp I could not tell. John Martin, George Wallace, Patrick Muldoon and Joseph Cohegenaski came out of the Mill creek opening some time after the explosion. "We were all working at what is called Goody's, three miles back,' said Martin. "We were beyond the point of the explosion about hair a mile. least 150 men were behind us. Thomas Wallace and his four 'buddles' were all that we saw who escaped from the point near rural free delivery, is in the city from the explosion.
